Victim.

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, July 13.—Patrick Eugene Prendergast, the assassin, who killed Carter Harrison, Mayor of Chicago, in October last, was hanged at the Cook County Jail to-day.

The drop fell at 11:45 (New York time, 12:45).

The murderer had said he would "die game," and he kept his word.

Prendergast's neck was apparently broken.

The march to the gallows began at 11:42.

OF CARTER HARRISON.

A few moments later Sheriff Gilbert and Jailer Morris appeared at the right of the scaffold. The prisoner walked behind them. He stood without apparent nervousness, though a trifle weak and unsteady, as his arms were being pinioned.

He looked calmly out on the assembled crowd below him.

The white shroud was next placed about him, and barring a little restless motion of the eyes up, down and from side to side, he made no motion.

Jailer Morris placed the rope about his neck, the white cap over his head and Prendergast had taken his last look of earth.

An instant later his body shot downward, the head twisted to one side, and hung slowly swaying back and forth.

At 11:47, nine minutes after the trigger was sprung, Prendergast was pronounced dead.

The assassin made no audible sound from the time he left his cell, apparently being lost in contemplation of his awful fate. He took his final leave of his spiritual adviser, gave a last handshake to his guards, and with low and choking voice bade them a last adieu.

He was gently dissuaded by Sheriff Gilbert from his determination to make a speech.

At 11:58 Jailer Morris loosened the anchored end of the rope, and the shrouded corpse was slowly lowered and laid in the coffin standing underneath the platform. The face of the dead man was not badly distorted.

PAPERS DRAWN YESTERDAY.

What Sovereign Says of the Calling
Off of the A. R. U. Strike.

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, July 13.—President Debs declared off the strike of the American Railway Union at 9:30 A. M. to-day.

He immediately proceeded to the headquarters of the General Managers' Association, presumably to negotiate for the return of the strikers to work.

President Debs' action leaves only the original strikers, the employees of the Pullman shops, still out.

Debs called a meeting of his directory at the Revere House, and for a half hour the strike leaders were in close conference.

When the doors of the council chamber were unlocked, Mr. Debs announced that he had officially declared the strike off, but asserted that he would make no statement until after a visit to the General Managers.

President Debs immediately, after making the following statement for publication:

"In view of the enormous proportions which this trouble has assumed and the inconvenience it is causing the public, the Board of Directors of the American Railway Union against the railroads will make the strike against the railroads of to-morrow.

After President Debs had made the announcement at the A. R. U. headquarters, he immediately left his office to call upon the General Managers' Association to take back all the men who went out."

That proposition, Mr. Debs expects, will be readily accepted by the railroad managers, as it will restore their lines to a condition in which they can resume business and gather in the revenues which during the past weeks have been almost entirely shut off.

In fact, the managers on most of the roads have already shown themselves tolerant towards their striking employees and have been glad to take them back whenever they declared a willingness to come.

This action on the part of the directors of the A. R. U. was evidently not the result of the conference with the American Federation of Labor at the Trapp House, for when President Gompers, of the Federation, and a number of other prominent labor leaders were informed of it they were inclined to discredit the report.

It is believed that the decision of President Cleveland to appoint a commission to arbitrate the Pullman strike is one of the reasons for calling off the A. R. U. boycott.

Another is that the railroads are rapidly getting into shape to make the men look like the back room of an ordinary saloon. They did not remain long for they were angrily requested to go into the lobby.

"I wouldn't have this thing happen for a thousand dollars," said the man who conducted the pool-room. Then he turned to the spectators and said: "Twenty-sixth street is the main entertainment center of the city. If we keep it up, it will be arbitration, not be arbitration. It is not unlikely that the saloon-keepers will lose their leases unless the 'Panhandle' uses its power to protect him."
